Mindblind Jennifer Roy

Roy (Yellow Star, 2006) has written an extraordinary novel with highly developed, good-hearted, and appealing characters (except for Nathaniel's father, who is a real stinker); a beautifully realized first-person voice that offers us an often humorous and intimate look into the mind and daily life of an Aspie; and a compelling story filled ...

Mindblind was beyond my expectations of any book with a genius. I expected Mindblind to be similar to Artemis Fowl, minus the fairies and Butler, but it was not. Ms. Jennifer Roy managed to make Mindblind similar, yet completely different from the Artemis Fowl series. The similarities are quite obvious.

By Donna Levin. Many Minds Are Blind. Jennifer Roy's Mindblind is middle-grade fiction, but there are some lessons for the parents here as well, especially those who could use an empathy booster-shot. The book is narrated by Nathaniel Clark a 14-year-old autistic savant. Nathaniel already has his bachelor's degree, and when the novel opens, he's applying to graduate schools.
