Community Reviews. Published as poetry, Anne Carson's Nox is closer by far to W.G. Sebald's Austerlitz than to any book of pocketable lyrics. Ultimately uncategorizable, this physically onomatopoeic facing of the death of a long-absent, long-estranged brother comes (as effects or ashes do) in a box.

Nox by Anne Carson - Goodreads

Anne Carson was born in Toronto, Ontario on June 21, 1950. With the help of a high school Latin instructor, she learned ancient Greek, which contributed to her continuing interest in classical and Hellenic literature. She attended St. Michael's College at the University of Toronto and, despite leaving twice, received her BA in 1974,...

Nox [Excerpts] by Anne Carson - Poems | Academy of ...

Anne Carson's Nox doesn't look or behave like any other book of poetry (or prose) out there. It's not a book in the traditional sense; the usual binary of verso and recto is confounded by one long page that accordions out of a coffin-like box.

Anne Carson's Nox - Believer Magazine

Writing in the Dark: Nox by Anne Carson. Carson walks us through the process of translation itself in these lexical entries and, by extension, gives us poetry that reminds one of Gertrude Stein: “Ad: preposition with accusative case . . . to, up to, into; to the house of, to X's, to the temple of; onto, to; into contact with, against . .

Writing in the Dark: Nox by Anne Carson | Quarterly ...

Nox by Anne Carson. Sure, an air of difficulty hangs over everything: there are a great many dislocations and disjunctions, a lot of fairly obscure classical references, and an entire remembered lifetime of silences, uncertainties and withholdings. Far from making the story seem remote, however, and lowering its emotional temperature,...

Andrew Motion on Nox by Anne Carson | Book review

Nox is an epitaph in the form of a book, a facsimile of a handmade book Anne Carson wrote and created after the death of her brother. The poem describes coming to terms with his loss through the lens of her translation of “Poem 101” by Catallus “for his brother who died in the Troad.” Nox is a work of poetry, but arrives as a fascinating and unique physical object.

Nox is also the Roman goddess of night—perhaps the oldest of the Roman deities, the mother, by many accounts, of sleep, fate, and death—and in Carson's elegy Night becomes a kind of elusive ...

The Unfolding | The New Yorker

Lamentation. Anne Carson's new book comes in a box the color of a rainy day, with a sliver of a family snapshot on the front. Inside is a Xerox-quality reproduction of a notebook, made after the death of her brother, including text and photographs and letters, pasted-in inkjet printouts, handwriting, paintings and collage.
