640x480 "VGA" resolution is the lowest-common-denominator - by definition all PC's, graphics adapters and monitors must support at least VGA. Because it's the one thing that can be counted on to work, and always work regardless of your hardware selection, it's often used as the fallback when troubleshooting, or the default if your computer doesn't know it can do any better.

Why is 640x480 my only resolution option? - Ask Leo

(In Windows 7, right-click on your desktop and click Screen Resolution. Click Make text and other items larger or smaller for a roughly equivalent setting: DPI.). This setting changes the size of everything, including text. For comparison, here are 150% (the default/recommended setting for my display) and 250% side by side (click the image for the larger or full-sized version).

I believe I am having a similar problem. My laptop dropped off the end of my bed and landed upside down from a fall of above two feet. The thing happened to be in sleep mode when it dropped and upon opening it, the resolution was set lower than it should be, even though vista was telling me the resolution hadn't been changed, and wouldn't let me set it any higher.
