Continuing on with my show business autobiographies theme for the month of May, Carol Burnett's One More Time was definitely my favorite so far. Ms. Burnett has a wonderful literary voice, and an even more fascinating story to tell. Similar to the Julie Andrews memoir, this book is about her early years.

I find "One More Time" by Carol Burnett to be well written and inspirational. She had a difficult, and often chaotic, childhood but loved her alcoholic parents, and hypochondriac grandmother with a fierce loyalty that few could match. She tells of following her dreams to be in show business, by moving to New York. I find her story utterly amazing.
