I think that Sean & Dave did a great job with the start of this series. In fact, it's the most gripping start of any of their books that I've read to date (Yesterday's Gone and Z 2134). I finished Z 2134 last night and decided to start Monstrous instead of turning out the light and going to bed, and read the entire episode before going to sleep.

Monstrous by Sean Platt and David Wright is a book that has good points. Its premise is one of my favourites, what happens after death. Henry Black just died. He and his family were attacked in their home. He finds himself in limbo, confused and frightened he makes a hurried deal with a demon named Boothe to get back his family.
