My Husband's Other Women is a novel that will lead readers thinking one thing, when the story is about another thing. The title made me think that the man was a cheater. But he was a man of many beautiful women. A man who didn't want to marry and yet. One woman who caught his heart and can deal with his crap made him settle down.

Prior to learning about his secrets and hearing what I've heard it did not hurt me when my husband looked at other women, it never even crossed my mind that it was anything other than normal. The worst part, which is an emotional rollercoaster ride, is the constant lying about everything, and I mean everything.

I found some text messages from another woman to my husband. We are now talking about getting a divorce. We have been married 10 years, and I have a 2 year. We already had a big argument but all I can think about is calling this girl. He gave his business card to this girl because she asked him for it. We own our own business. They have been texting back and forth.

Do I have reason to feel hurt and upset when I see my husband turn his head and look at other women? He has always been faithful to and affirming of me. I trust him, and he's the last guy I'd characterize as a womanizer. Still, it bothers me to see him react this way when he's out in public. Am I too sensitive about this?
